Summer is on its way, lambing time is well underway, and they are heading out to the fields to enjoy the summer months. Fertiliser is being spread in preparation for silage time, so any maintenance is also being completed while the pits are ready and waiting to be filled. On the equine side, racing and jumping has started again, soon spectators will be filling up the stands placing bets and enjoying themselves. Horses get turned out to the fields for the warmer months too.,

Flexscreed installed in a swan sanctuary

Over at Quattro, we are still struggling with delays importing stock, however the yard is slowly starting to fill up. Coronavirus, Brexit and the Suez Canal disruptions are slowing the process. We are able to supply and fit in a variety of locations and different areas, including the swan sanctuary in London, featured in the above photos.

We are still working in line with Government guidelines regarding coronavirus. We have reduced staff in our office and our site men are working in smaller groups, minimising contact with clients at all times. Customers visiting the warehouse and office are required to wear masks at all times and sanitise hands regularly.
